

Energy efficiency is the one easy fix to a growing problem. Future historians are going to study our ways of living, and at quite simply, we will look so ignorant. We have these wondrous opportunities to prevent respiratory illnesses, save enormous amounts of money, and show the U.S. why Arizona deserves attention.

Of course, energy efficiency is time consuming and expensive up front, but the effects are long lasting and worthwhile. I am all for it, and I know from experience that my generation is willing to work for it.

Sincerely,

Rachel Banks
